BARATON

UNIVERSITY OF EASTERN AFRICA, BARATON

A Chartered Seventh-Day Adventist Institution of Higher Learning

By the year 1978, there was only one full-fledged university in Kenya. Students desiring to pursue higher education but missed a chance, locally had to seek for it elsewhere, in fact outside Eastern Africa.

The Seventh-day Adventist Church with authority from the Kenyan government established the first private university, based in Baraton village, Nandi County. The institution was not only to serve Kenyans but the population within Eastern Africa, hence the name University of Eastern Africa, Baraton. Classes began in September, 1979, in the temporary dairy farm structures.

The Commission for Higher Education of Kenya granted accreditation in 1980 and this allowed the university to operate as a university college of Andrews University. Therefore, from 1980 to 1991, the University College was affiliated to Andrews University, Michigan, USA and offered four-year Bachelor's degree programs.

In 1991, the Government of Kenya granted a charter allowing the University to award her own degrees. Thus, the institution became the first private university in Kenya to be granted Charter by the then President of the Republic of Kenya, His Excellency the late Hon. Daniel Toroitich arap Moi.

The University is accredited by the Commission for University Education, Nursing Council of Kenya, Public Health Officers, Technicians Council of Kenya, Kenya Nutritionists and Dieticians Institute, Kenya Medical Laboratory Technicians and Technologists Board, as well as the Adventist Accrediting Association (AAA).

The University of Eastern Africa, Baraton serves students from all over the world. It admits qualified students regardless of their religious background, provided they accept the Christian principles and lifestyle which form the basis for the University's educational philosophy and life.
